

Currently, I am learning how to use react and javascript which is the environment we will use for our project. However, my knowledge is still lacking since this is my first time learning this. Currently, my goal is to get better at these so that I can contribute more towards the team's deliveries; Both in terms of writing my own code as well as assisting others when needed. Up to this point, some of my contributions include working on the project scope and the social contract. On Monday v.37 we will start creating user stories where I hope to assist in making them as small and manageable as possible.
