

This week the group focused on starting on the report and fixing some small bugs. First, everyone assisted each other by setting up relevant topics and writing down a few questions that could be discussed on those topics. A way that I can be of assistance to my team is to provide relevant feedback on the topics they have written about.